A. J. CERMAK HITS PROHIBITION IN JOLIET SPEECH

A. J. Cermak, Democratic Candidate for U. S. Senator spoke in Joliet Wednesday night. Following is a digest of his speech:-

It is a pleasure for me to be with you here in the home bailiwick of Mayor Sehring and my old friends of Will County.

In the old days you could throw a stone from Braidwood to Joliet, but that was before Prohibition. Since Prohibition, I see my opponents are some throwers, and you folks may have read how they are throwing my Bottle Opener across the State of Illinois.

They should.

They are also throwing a smoke screen across the terrible effects that have resulted from Prohibition, and while they are using my bottle opener in private, they are telling the farmer of the State, not to do as they do -- but do as they say and vote.

If I could reconcile my conscience to the extent of putting on a very arid front--keeping myself very dry in public, and being "all wet" in private, the Anti-Saloon League would be shouting from the hill-tops of my wonderful record of achievement.

If I acted that way, I would be one of the arch-hypocrites of Ill.

If that was my mode of action, I should have fooled the Miners of Illinois, when they brought to my attention that non-union coal was placed in unfair competition with Illinois Union-mined coal in the Cook County Institutions of this State. Today, there is not a Dollar's worth of coal -- other than Illinois Union-Mined Coal, used in the Institutions over which I preside and administer.

You folks in Joliet must know what the situation is with regard to your own prison in this city. I have recently completed a revision of an investigation made by me of the effects of Prohibition on Crime, Poverty, Insanity, Murder, Alcoholic Deaths, and Poor House Inmates, since the operation of the Volstead Act.

In 1918 in the Joliet Penitentiary there were 1623 incarcerated for felonies. At that time you did not have the new prison, and I recall that the new prison was built to take the place of the old penitentiary. You know that today the capacity of the two prisons is 3265, with accommodations normally for 1515 in the old prison, and 1750 in the new prison. But the records show that at the end of the fiscal year of 1927, you had on hand 4989 in the two institutions, an increase of 208 percent. This was your total population on the books and if the 1379 paroled defaulters, the 99 men on transfer, and the 32 men on writs were to suddenly return to your Institution, I don't know what in the world this Institution would do to accommodate them.

Do you realize that this is a 208 percent increase in the imprisonment of felons. There were 309 prisoners paroled during the year. The per capita cost of a prisoner at the State Farm is $320.23. This means that in 1918 the taxpayers of the State had to provide $215,733.29 each year of the handling of these prisoners, but in 1927 they had to supply funds in the amount of $1,616,529.47, or an increase of $1,400,796.18 since Prohibition. This burden is passed on to the taxpayer, while the revenue that formerly came from the legalized distribution of liquor, wines and beer is taken away, which adds to the burden of the taxpayer.

The bootlegger is getting this revenue and Great Britain alone is securing an annual revenue on beer of $759,000,000.

And I charge that there is more liquor, beer and wine in the United States today than there was in 1918.

The results of Prohibition that can be pointed to in your territory here alone is true of practically every State in the Union. A survey in Cook County shows the following situation.

In 1918, the Police Department arrested 222 drunken automobile drivers, in 1927 the Police Department arrested 1947 an increase of 877 percent.

In 1918 in the City of Chicago, there were 44,949 disorderly conduct cases -- in 1927, there were 87,329 an increase of 96 percent.

The total population of the County Jail in 1918 was 9672, in 1927, it was 14,225, an increase of 47 percent.

In 1918 there was a total population of 10,124 prisoners in the House of Correction, and in 1927 there were 18,221, an increase of 80 percent.

Bond Issue Will Speed Up Paving Say Road Boosters

The Will County road building bond issue measure is of great importance to the voters of Will County and should receive very careful attention when it comes up to be voted on at the November 6th election. Those in favor of the measure say that it is the only way in which Will County can get a network of concrete roads around Joliet so as to connect up with other state bond issue routes and also to give many of the country districts of the county not now connected with state bond issue systems a direct hookup.

It is pointed out that farm land values will be increased by having highways paved and that it will provide paved roads in the Barr subdivision and to the Golf Club grounds north of Gougar's. In addition Maple street would be paved and would be used as the Will County entrance of the new South-west highway in Cook County which super highway is to be built thru to the Will and Cook county line thus giving Joliet a short cut to Chicago. It is further pointed out by the boosters of this measure that the state will not derive enough money from auto license fees to build all these highways and that it would take many years to complete the work whereas if the bond issue is floated the work can be completed in a short time and the people of the county can be using these paved roads while paying for them.

If a new gas tax should be passed the money allotted to Will County under such tax could be used in retiring these bonds and on the other hand it could be used to still build more hard roads.

If the bond issue passes and the roads called for by the county road program are built Will County will have more miles of paved road than any other county in the state outside of Cook County.

Cook County and other counties are building their highways by county bond issues, and the bond issue boosters feel that Will County can do likewise.

The bond issue advocates are already working hard to get as many votes as possible lined up for the proposition which they expect will go over big at the election on November 6th.

Pure Milk Assoc. Meets Oct. 10

One of the most important meetings ever held in connection with Chicago's milk supply will be held at the Morrison Hotel in Chicago on Wednesday October 10, at 10:00 a. m., according to information received from headquarters of the Pure Milk Association in the Transportation Building, Chicago.

According to President W. C. McQueen, the Pure Milk Association now controls a majority of Chicago's regular milk supply and members of the organization are demanding recognition and a definite place in their market structure.

"After spending over a month in negotiations," says President McQueen, "it becomes increasingly clear that drastic action must be taken before producers will be able to gain their objective."

At the meeting on October 10th, it is planned to present to producers the actual conditions that they must face and a definite plan that will correct these conditions and induce dealers to yield to the organization in their demands.

According to President McQueen these demands are:

1. Recognition of the organization as a sales agency for all producers and arbitration of all disputes over the price of milk.
2. Producers demand the right to enter plants to check weights and tests.
3. A buying plan that will induce and pay for even production, and recognize and dispose of surplus milk.
4. The reorganization of the inspection system with the cooperation of the organization to bring about higher quality in milk and cream.
5. Producer and dealer cooperation to bring about increased consumption and a knowledge of the value of milk.

Producers, whether members of the Pure Milk Association or not, are urged to attend the meeting.

Vote No on County Bond Issue Nov. 6 Opponents Urge

The Will County road bond issue is going to meet with much opposition thruout the county according to those who are opposed to it.

Those against the bond issue say it will load an unnecessary tax on the taxpayers of the county. The issue is for $1,750,000, but nothing is said about the interest and other extra costs which will approximate $110,000 additional to the principal, making a total of $1,860,000. The bonds will bear 4% percent interest and will run for a period of 20 years. In order to pay principal and interest a tax of 20 cents on each $100 assessed valuation is proposed. The total assessed valuation of the county is $109,000,000 which will mean a heavy tax burden and many farmers who have all they can do to meet the present high taxes will not be able to hold on if they have to pay a heavy additional tax.

The opponents of the bond issue further point out that there are many sections of Will County which will not be benefited by the bond issue inasmuch as no roads will be paved in these sections and yet the voters and taxpayers of such districts will be asked to pay an increase in taxes to pay for something they will not have nor are directly benefited by.

The opponents point out that if the state passes a gas tax it will mean that Will County will receive enough money from such tax to pave its highways without a cent of direct tax or interest to the taxpayers of the county. Approximately from 5 to 6 miles of paved roads could be built each year by a gas tax. In the time it will take to pay off the proposed bond issue all the highways that should be paved in the county could be paved by such tax without placing any burden on the tax payers and property owners.

A gas tax is declared to be the only equitable way in which to pave roads as every user of gasoline will be paying a tax. As it now stands many hired men and many others who do not own a foot of property are using the paved roads without paying for same.

There is no assurance, the opponents of the bond issue say, that the number of miles of paving asked for by the county bond issue can be built for the $1,750,000 bond issue. Connecting Wolf Road from the Will and Cook County line north of Mokena with the Lincoln highway south of Mokena, a distance of 3 1/2 miles is proposed under the bond issue. This connection is No. 23 on the bond issue map and there is no assurance that this connection will be paved under the proposed bond issue. In case the issue is not enough to complete the highways named on the map, such highways as cannot be finished would have to wait until another bond issue can be floated say the opponents.

It is pointed out that non-tax payers are those mostly in favor of the bond issue and will support it strongly, also certain real estate men and sub-dividers will plug for it the strongest.

A copy of the bond issue map showing all the roads to be paved under this issue can be seen at the News-Bulletin office by anyone interested in same.

BANDITS BREAK WINDOW AND MAKE ESCAPE

Two bandits came near being caught while attempting to rob the Sportman's Inn at Tinley Park, Tuesday morning.

About two o'clock that morning a private watchman heard a car drive up in front of the place. He went to investigate and found one man sitting in a touring car. The watchman walked by the car to the rear of the restaurant and saw the rear door open. He asked who was there and by that time the door was slammed in his face. The man in the car gave two sharp honks with his auto horn.

The watchman then heard a terrific crash in the front of the building. When he got to the front of the building he saw two men leap on the running board of the car which started up quickly and headed toward the concrete road. As the car neared the crossing a fast train approached and the driver of the bandit car just missed running into the train. The two men on the running boards leaped from the car and ran in opposite directions, but after the train had passed the car started up again the two bandits ran after the car and jumped on again and disappeared toward the north. The watchman fired five shots after the fleeing men and said one was limping and it is thought he may have been hit.

The shooting aroused the residents of the neighborhood but they could not get started quick enough to apprehend the bandits.

It was discovered that when the two bandits were inside, the lone bandit on guard saw they were in danger of being caught, so he gave the warning with two sharp auto horn honks, whereupon the bandits threw a chair thru a plate glass window and leaped out. A window in the door was also smashed. Not a thing was disturbed in the building as the bandits did not have time to start operations.

Pry Safe Open And Get $35

Advocates Change In Election System

Editor News-Bulletin:

I was much surprised last spring after making inquiries to learn that there was one committeeman from each election district. I understand that it is a state law. When I was living in California, each party had its own rulings regarding state, county and town committees. In towns the size of Frankfort township there were three from each election district and one at large, who acted as chairman of the town committee and was a member of the County Committee.

New York State (outside of cities) elect two men and two women for each election district. The county committeeman is elected separate.

I think the same law would be good for Illinois. Elect three from Mokena and three from Frankfort and one from the town at large to act as county committeeman to also be chairman for the town committee. I feel sure that such a plan would give good satisfaction.

Emmerson States His Position On Highway Paving

These letters are self explanatory

Mokena, Ill., Sept. 26, 1928.
Hon. L. L. Emmerson,
Secretary of State,
Springfield, Ill.

Honorable Dear Sir:

The Will County Board of Supervisors have approved a proposed Bond Issue of $1,750,000 for the purpose of constructing fifty-three miles of hard roads in Will County, which will be voted on by the people of Will County on November 6.

The roads that make up the fifty-three miles are state aid roads and connect with state bond issue routes.

The members of this club are against this bond issue and believe that the state should build these roads from funds derived from the license fees or from funds derived from a tax on gasoline.

This bond issue if passed by the voters of Will County, will increase taxation, especially to the farmer, inasmuch as the greater part of Will County is a farming community.

This club would like to have an expression from you in regard to this bond issue, as we believe that there are ways and means by which these roads can be built without additional taxation to the people.

An early reply will be very much appreciated by the voters of this community.

Yours very truly,
MOKENA EMMERSON REPUBLICAN CLUB.

L. G. Bruder, President.
Here is the reply:

Dear Mr. Bruder:

Your letter of September 26th was on my desk when I returned to Springfield, after an absence of several days, campaigning out in the state, and I have read the same with very great interest.

My position on the matter of roads has been well defined for 25 years, and the statement I made at Mt. Vernon on November 10th, when I became a candidate for Governor, gives my attitude on the highway proposition.

This statement was incorporated in the Republican platform at the time of the Republican State Convention on April 20th.

New Industry Big Aid to Farmers

The new industry of the Hindle-Todd Lumber Company at Chicago Heights in which corn stalks are utilized in the manufacture of insulating lumber is a splendid industry for the farmer, making a worth while market for his surplus material and converting it into a valuable building material needed by farmers for improving their old buildings and for all kinds of new buildings. This lumber is three times the value of white pine, thus saving 25 percent of fuel cost in all buildings where made use of and saving a large percentage of food cost for the domestic animals and making homes and opportunities that are much more comfortable. Thus the industry has a two fold advantage where ever located. Farmers look into this proposition.

America's Debt to a Spanish Queen

QUEEN ISABELLA

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

AS COLUMBUS day approaches this year it finds a project under way for paying homage to the name and achievements of Christopher Columbus on a greater scale than has ever before been attempted. In the United States, as well as in other nations in the Western hemisphere, his fame has been perpetuated in the names of hundreds of cities, towns and public squares, monuments have been erected in his honor and the date of his discovery of the New World has been celebrated as an important date in history and a holiday. All of these, however, have been individual memorials.

Now the nations of the two Americas are planning to co-operate in honoring him and, under the auspices of the Pan-American Union, erect a $4,000,000 Christopher Columbus Memorial Light-house, a beacon for navigators of both the sea and the air, in the capital of Santo Domingo, the land which Columbus called Hispaniola. The Dominican republic already has set aside a 2,500-acre tract of waterfront land for a Pan-American park, in which the lighthouse is to be built and appropriated money as its share of the cost of the memorial. Legislation proposing similar appropriations have already been introduced in the United States, Cuba and several other countries and the first step, that of holding a competition in which the leading architects of the world have been invited to submit designs, toward realization of the memorial project already has been taken.

No one will deny the appropriateness of this form of a memorial to one of the most famous navigators of all time, and most Americans will applaud the idea of thus honoring once more the man whose courage in facing the terrors of the unknown set him upon that voyage which marks the beginning of American history. From our school days the story of Columbus has been a familiar one to us all and his name stands out in our memory as one of the great figures in the history of our nation. It should be remembered, however, that the discovery of America was not a strictly individual proposition and it does not detract any from the fame of Columbus to give proper credit to others who were concerned in it.

When a final reckoning of credit due is made, outstanding among the names of those who were associated with the Genoese sailor in his great undertaking is the name of a Spanish queen to whom America owes a debt of gratitude which has but scantily been repaid. For had it not been for Isabella of Castile, royal consort of Ferdinand of Aragon and queen of Spain, the voyage of Christopher Columbus might never have been undertaken. To most of us, depending upon our school histories for our information about events of those far-off times, Ferdinand and Isabella are little more than mere names and, except for their association with the name of Columbus, are but dim and shadowy figures in the pageant of American history. We know that after failing to interest the ruler of Portugal in his ambitious project to find a short route to the wealth of the Indies by sailing westward over the Atlantic, Columbus determined to lay his case before the rulers of Spain.

To an American historian, Washington Irving, we are indebted for a clear pen picture of these two monarchs, and especially of Queen Isabella, who were destined to have such an important role in the history of our nation. In his "Life and Voyages of Christopher Columbus" Irving writes:

The time when Columbus thus sought his fortunes at the court of Spain coincided with one of the most brilliant periods of the Spanish monarchy. The union of the kingdoms of Aragon and Castile, by the marriage of Ferdinand and Isabella, had consolidated the Christian power in the peninsula, and put an end to those internal feuds which had so long distracted the country, and insured the domination of the Moslems. The whole force of united Spain was now exerted in the chivalrous enterprise of the Moorish conquest. The Moors, who had once spread over the whole country like an inundation, were now pent up within the mountain boundaries of the kingdom of Granada. The victorious armies of Ferdinand and Isabella were continually advancing, and pressing this fierce people within narrower limits. Under these sovereigns the various petty kingdoms of Spain began to feel and act as one nation, and to rise to eminence in arts as well as arms. Ferdinand and Isabella, it has been remarked, lived together not like man and wife, whose estates are common, under the orders of the husband, but like two monarchs strictly allied. They had separate claims to sovereignty, in virtue of their respective kingdoms; they had separate councils, and were often distant from each other in different parts of their empire, each exercising the royal authority. Yet they were so happily united by common views, common interests, and a great deference for each other, that this double administration never prevented a unity of purpose and of action. All acts of sovereignty were executed in both their names; all public writings were subscribed with both their signatures; their likenesses were stamped together on the public coin, and the royal seal displayed the united arms of Castile and Aragon.

Ferdinand was of middle stature, well proportioned, and hardy and active from athletic exercise. His carriage was free, erect and majestic. He had a clear, serene forehead, which appeared more lofty from his head being partly bald. His eyebrows were large and parted and, like his hair, of a bright chestnut; his eyes were clear and animated; his complexion was somewhat ruddy, and scorched by the toils of war; his mouth moderate, well formed, and gracious in its expression; his teeth white, though small and irregular; his voice sharp, his speech quick and five-paced. His genius was clear and comprehensive; his judgment grave and certain. He was simple in dress and diet, equable in his temper, devout in his religion, and so indefatigable in business that it was said he seemed to repose himself by working. He was a great observer and judge of men, and unparalleled in the science of the cabinet. Such is the picture given of him by the Spanish historians of his time.

While giving his picture, it may not be deemed impertinent to sketch the fortunes of a monarch whose policy had such an effect upon the history of Columbus and the destinies of the New World. Success attended all his measures. Though a younger son, he had ascended the throne of Aragon by inheritance; Castile he obtained by marriage; Granada and Naples by conquest; and he seized upon Navarre as appertaining to any one who could take possession of it, when Pope Julius II excommunicated its sovereigns, Juan and Catalina, and gave their throne to the first occupant. He sent his forces into Africa, and subjugated or reduced to vassalage, Tunis, Tripoli, Algiers, and most of the Barbary powers. A new world was also given to him, without cost, by the discoveries of Columbus, for the expense of the enterprise was borne exclusively by his consort Isabella. He had three objects at heart from the commencement of his reign, which he pursued with bigoted and persecuting zeal: the conquest of the Moors, the expulsion of the Jews, and the establishment of the Inquisition in his dominions.

Contemporary writers have been enthusiastic in their descriptions of Isabella, but time has sanctioned their eulogies. She is one of the purest and most beautiful characters in the pages of history. She was well formed, of the middle size, with great dignity and gracefulness of deportment, and a mingled gravity and sweetness of demeanor. Her complexion was fair; her hair auburn, inclining to red; her eyes were of a clear blue, with a benign expression, and there was a singular modesty in her countenance, gracing as it did, a wonderful firmness of purpose and earnestness of spirit. Though strongly attached to her husband and studious of his fame, yet she always maintained her distinct rights as an allied prince. She excelled him in beauty, in personal dignity, in acuteness of genius, and in grandeur of soul. Combining the active and resolute qualities of man with the softer charities of woman, she mingled in the warlike councils of her husband, engaged personally in his enterprises, and in some instances surpassed him in the firmness and intrepidity of her measures; while, being inspired with a truer idea of glory, she infused a more lofty and generous temper into his subtle and calculating policy.

It is in the civil history of their reign, however, that the character of Isabella shines most illustrious. Her fostering and maternal care was continually directed to reform the laws, and heal the ills engendered by a long course of internal wars. She loved her people, and while diligently seeking their good, she mitigated, as much as possible, the harsh measures of her husband, directed to the same end, but inflamed by a mistaken zeal. Thus, though almost bigoted in her piety, and perhaps too much under the influence of ghostly advisers, still she was hostile to every measure calculated to advance religion at the expense of humanity. She strenuously opposed the expulsion of the Jews and the establishment of the Inquisition, though, unfortunately for Spain, her repugnance was slowly vanquished by her confessors. She was always an advocate for clemency to the Moors, although she was the soul of the war against Granada. She considered that war essential to protect the Christian faith, and to relieve her subjects from fierce and formidable enemies. While all her public thoughts and acts were princely and august, her private habits were simple, frugal and unostentatious. In the intervals of state business she assembled round her the ablest men in literature and science, and directed herself by their counsels, in promoting letters and arts. Through her patronage, Salamanca rose to that height which it assumed among the learned institutions of the age. She promoted the distribution of honors and rewards for the promotion of knowledge; she fostered the art of printing recently invented, and encouraged the establishment of presses in every part of the kingdom; books were admitted free of all duty, and more, we are told, were printed in Spain, at that early period of the art, than in the present literary age.

It is wonderful how much the destinies of countries depend at times upon the virtues of individuals, and how it is given to great spirits by combining, exciting, and directing the latent powers of a nation, to stamp it, as it were, with their own greatness. Such beings realize the idea of guardian angels, appointed by Heaven to watch over the destinies of empires. Such had been Prince Henry for the kingdom of Portugal; and such was now for Spain the illustrious Isabella.

Columbus appeared before Ferdinand and Isabella early in 1486 and after giving his project a hearing they referred it to the queen's confessor, Hernando de Talavera, with instructions to summon a council for its consideration. This council was very deliberate in its actions and, after nearly five years, reported adversely for the ambitious sailor in 1490. But through the efforts of Juan Perez, guardian of the monastery of La Robida, a former confessor to Queen Isabella, Columbus was given another hearing at court, and in January, 1492, another council was summoned to consider his plans.

Contrary as it may be to popular belief, the picture of Columbus as a humble suppliant before the Spanish rulers is not strictly an accurate one. Rather than that of a man asking favors, his attitude was that of a shrewd bargainer in which he demanded of Ferdinand and Isabella a patent of nobility, the admiralty of the ocean, the viceroyalty and government of all lands discovered on his proposed voyage, a commission of 10 per cent upon everything within the limits of his admiralty "which might be bought, exchanged, found or gained" and three caravels to cost approximately $6,000. Such were the rewards which he asked—"rewards which," according to a modern historian, "if granted, would raise him to a dizzy height, to a point of rank, power and riches next to that of the throne itself."

So it is not surprising, perhaps, that for the second time the council reported adversely upon his proposal and he was dismissed from the Spanish court and departed sorrowing for Cordova. And then the hand of a woman intervened in the destiny of Columbus and played its part in the future history of the American nation. Two leagues from Granada, he was overtaken by a royal constable who had been sent posthaste by Isabella with orders for his return. His every demand would be granted! Just what it was that influenced the Spanish queen to take this action has never been satisfactorily explained. There only remains the fact that she did so, even though Ferdinand resented the high price demanded by Columbus for his services and held aloof from agreeing to the bargain until Isabella won him over. According to one story which has come to be inseparably associated with the story of Columbus, the queen in order to win Ferdinand's consent offered her jewels as security for money for the enterprise. Although some historians have characterized this incident as "one of those bits of pure romance that so often creep into the historical narrative and lend fictitious color to it," others give it enough credence to justify the belief that there may be some measure of truth in it.

It is interesting to note that within the past few years there have been offered for sale in this country by a syndicate of jewelers in New Jersey the very gems, it is said, which Queen Isabella pawned to finance Columbus' expedition, and records supporting their authenticity were produced. These jewels consist of 280 stones, weighing 500 carats. In addition to the breast-piece with its seven large drops, weighing 400 carats (the largest weighs 54 carats) there are five other diamonds and the whole set of jewels is valued at $500,000.

Whether or not these stories are true, however, is more or less incidental. The principal fact is that the persistence of the Genoese sailor through many discouragements and setbacks, was finally rewarded, his fleet of three little ships set out from Palos, Spain, on August 3, 1492, and, despite the fears of a mutinous crew, "sailed on and on" until one October morning four hundred and thirty-six years ago Columbus and his men saw for the first time the shores of the New World. That is the event which we Americans are celebrating again on October 12 and, considering the important part which she had in making that possible, it should be a date not only for honoring Christopher Columbus but for holding in grateful remembrance the Spanish queen, Isabella of Castile, to whom America owes an everlasting debt.

Hot Oil Employed to

Wipe Out Mosquitoes

Hot fuel oil, sprayed along the shores of the lakes in the Canal zone, is a most efficacious weapon against malaria-laden mosquitoes. This oil, a big factor in the fight which is culminating in certain abolition of the insect, has destroyed breeding places in the Pedro Miguel and Gatun lakes.

The method used to spray the oil necessitates the use of a rowboat carrying a tank containing 150 gallons of oil, and a crew of three men. One man rows, one works a hand pump and the other handles the spray nozzle. The hot oil is sprayed on the shore line as fast as the boat can be propelled. This surface filming has been found positive and complete.

Wind action and wavelets carry the oil into every nook and cranny, even to a considerable distance from the point of application. A rigid inspection follows every oiling to determine if it has been done thoroughly.

Elsewhere than in the lake areas, mosquito breeding is controlled chiefly by training of streams and by draining and filling.

Rid of Constipation. Improved Both Health and Looks

"I suffered from stomach and bowel trouble for a number of years. I finally got so bad that I had no life or energy left, and felt that there was no help for me. I was completely worn out all the time, had a distressed, haggard look on my face. My mind was dull, my eyes blurred, and I was unable to take an interest in anything."

"I commenced using Milks Emulsion in May. It occurred to me that the best way to let you see the wonderful improvement Milks Emulsion had made in my health and appearance, would be to send you the picture that I happened to have taken a few weeks before I started using your Milks Emulsion, and to have another picture taken now, and send both to you."

"I am still taking your Milks Emulsion and improving each day. I know I would have been in my grave had it not been for your Emulsion. I love to take it. It is so pleasant and agreeable."

"I only weighed 108 pounds when I began to use Milks Emulsion, and now I weigh 138 pounds. It has cleared up my complexion, made my eyes bright and a difference in my looks, as you will see by the two pictures. I don't look like the same woman. To my mind it is Nature's beautifier."

"I try to get everyone that I meet to take Milks Emulsion as it is the most wonderful medicine in the world." Yours truly, MISS SARAH KATE KNIGHT, 722 Anderson St., Bristol, Tenn.

Berlin Business Men

Forced to Exercise

Berlin is rapidly becoming a city of fences in the truest sense of the word. Busy squares are being fenced in; low wire fences are being erected between the tracks of the street cars, where they run on a strip of grass in the center of the road; everywhere substantial metal fences are being put up. This is done to force the pedestrian to cross certain squares and thoroughfares only at specially marked corners. The population, however, is not exactly grateful to the authorities for thus taking care of them, for the fences smack too much of the old Prussian discipline. Not infrequently it happens that a man who has to catch a train or who is otherwise in a hurry jumps a fence and thus many a sedate business man is gradually acquiring considerable athletic skill.—Exchange.

Trouble is about the only thing a man can borrow without being called upon to pay it back.

"WORTH WEIGHT IN GOLD"

Verdict of Woman Who Tried Pinkham's Compound

Tully, N. Y.—"It hurt me to walk or sit down without help and I felt sick and weak."

My mother-in-law took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she induced me to take it. I am now on the fourth bottle and have also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. The medicines that will do for me what the Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash have done are certainly worth their weight in gold. I think I have given them a fair trial and I expect to take two more bottles of the Vegetable Compound."—MRS. CHARLES MORGAN, R. F. D. 1, Tully, N. Y.

REPUBLICANS GIVE FARMERS HOME MARKET MONOPOLY

WASHINGTON. — The American farmer under Republican administration has had practically a monopoly of his home market. In this protected market he disposes of 95 per cent of his products at prices higher than are paid elsewhere in the world for like products. This is pointed out in the Republican campaign textbook.

The complete book is being printed in installments of which the first is devoted entirely to agriculture, and includes pertinent extracts from Herbert Hoover's acceptance address, the agricultural plank of the Kansas City platform and other pertinent data relative to the farm situation.

In addition to this, there is a recital of the Republican party's constructive legislation in behalf of agriculture since 1920, a provision intended to show that the promises now being made to the farmers by Mr. Hoover and Senator Curtis spring from a sympathetic attitude and therefore will be fulfilled in good faith by the Republicans.

The problems of agriculture are treated from an economic rather than a political viewpoint, and emphasis is laid on the freedom from economic fallacies of the agricultural legislation already passed by Republican congresses which includes 24 measures since March, 1921, when the Republicans came into office.

Lighthouse Illumination

Most of the American lighthouses guarding ships against coastal rocks have now run the complete gamut of lighting in the last 200 years. They began with fish oil and then proceeded through sperm oil, rapeseed or colza oil, lard oil, vaporized kerosene with incandescent mantles and finally electric light, which made dependence on kerosene obsolete.

VOTE AGAINST $20,000,000 STATE GAME PRESERVE BOND ISSUE SAYS CHICAGO CIVIC FED.

It has been incorrectly stated by advocates of the bond issue that there is now a large balance in the game and fish fund. For the two fiscal years 1924 and 1925 the income from fees totaled $772,627 and the expenditures were $708,906. As only $161,834 of the amount expended was paid out of the game and fish fund, while $547,072 was paid out of the general revenue fund, more than $600,000 was accumulated in the game and fish fund, but during the last three years that balance has been wiped out in the purchase of land and improvements. The exact amount expended for land and improvements in these three years was $606,453. According to the records of the State Treasurer's office the balance in the game and fish fund June 30, 1928, was only $30,084, with outstanding warrants amounting to $24,005, leaving a net balance of only $6,079.

HEAVY COST OF BOND ISSUE

When the $20,000,000 of bonds have been sold, the interest at four per cent, which is the rate paid on other recent bond issues of the State, will approximate about $800,000 for the first year thereafter, and the average sum which must be provided for retiring the bond issue within the 30 years that it is run will be about $666,000 per annum, a total of about $1,466,000 a year when the interest charge is highest. The average interest of charge during the thirty-year period will exceed $400,000 a year. That the creation of a considerable force of salaried employees is contemplated if the bond issue carries is indicated by a provision in the act empowering the Department of Conservation "to employ such clerks, custodians, keepers, laborers and assistants as may be reasonably necessary or convenient to carry out the provision of this act".

The suggestion has been made by "boosters" of the proposed bond issue that direct taxation can be avoided by doubling the license fees. As the total receipts of the game and fish fund, including all such fees, amounted to but $481,480 for the last fiscal year, and are now entirely absorbed by operating expenses; and as about $1,466,000 additional will be required yearly to take care of interest and bond retirement charges when these are at their peak; it is apparent that it would be necessary to increase the license fees about four-fold in order to meet such charges. There is no provision in the bond issue act for increasing the license fees.

THE GAME AND FISH FUND

Fees received for hunting and fishing licenses form the principal part of the game and fish fund in the State treasury. Such monies have long been set aside by the Legislature for the propagation and protection of game and fish in the State, including enforcement of the laws enacted for that purpose. When these functions were vested in the newly created Department of Conservation in 1925 the game and fish codes were amended so as to provide that appropriations from the game and fish fund shall be made only to that Department, and shall be used only for its expenses, including the purchase of land for fish hatcheries, game refuges, preserves and public shooting and fishing grounds and for their maintenance.

During the last three years the number of resident hunting licenses issued by the State has increased from 267,172 for the year ending June 30, 1925 to 303,567 for the year ending June 30, 1928, an average increase of about 4 per cent a year. During the same period the number of fishing licenses issued to residents of this State has increased from 301,290 to 423,635, an average increase of about 14 per cent annually.

PROJECT GIVEN LITTLE STUDY

At the 1927 session of the Legislature comparatively slight consideration was given to the bond issue bill, which was largely ignored in the hard fighting over other measures. The bill received only 83 votes in the House when it was passed on June 2, having but six votes to spare over the number required to pass a measure in that body. Most of the votes in its favor were those of members allied with the Thompson or Small organizations.

The bill passed the Senate on June 17 by a vote of 35 to 4, but many of the best informed members of that body refused to go on record as favoring it. Among those who failed to vote on the roll-call were Senators Barbour, Bohrer, Brown, Courtney, Dunlap, Flagg, Hicks, Meents, and Swift. Those voting against it were Senators Burgess, Cuthbertson, Emmons and Reynolds.

Many legislators who were not enthusiastic about the bill were induced to vote for it or to refrain from voting against it, by the plea that as it had a referendum clause, the ultimate responsibility for its adoption or defeat would rest upon the voters of the State. Having "eased" the measure through the Legislature by this plea, its backers are now trying to induce the voters to approve it as a product of the ripe wisdom of the General Assembly.

In the Joliet Penitentiary in 1918 there were 1623 prisoners—in 1927 the total number on the books was 4989, an increase of 208 per cent.

At the Pontiac Reformatory in 1918 there were 992 prisoners—in 1927 there were 2710 prisoners on the books, an increase of 173 per cent, and the capacity of this institution is 1300. In other words, there are more than twice as many prisoners as its capacity.

In 1918 there were 271 prisoners at the Chester Insane Penitentiary—in 1927 there were 2027, an increase of 648 per cent.

The Coroner's office of Cook County shows there were 86 deaths due to alcohol in 1918—in 1927 there were 531 deaths due to alcohol, an increase of 517 per cent.

The Chicago Health Department's records show that in 1918 there were 73 deaths due to alcohol—in 1927 there were 302, an increase of 318 per cent.

In 1914 at the Cook County Psychopathic Hospital, 2807 patients were cared for—in 1927 there were 5235, an increase of 87 per cent.

In 1914 the Cook County Hospital gave medical aid to 25,330 persons, and in 1927 it gave medical aid to 45,214, an increase of 78 per cent. But the number of persons who applied for medical attention in 1927 numbered 117,000.

The Poverty Relief Department of Cook County gave aid to 6,777 families in 1918, and in 1927 there were 12,743 families cared for, an increase of 88 per cent.

In 1914 there were 2,673 Insane petitions filed in the Cook County Court—in 1927 there were 4,408, an increase of 65 per cent.

In 1914 there were 1,786 persons confined to the Elgin Insane Hospital—in 1927 there were 2905, an increase of 63 per cent.

In 1914 there was a population of 2,693 at the Oak Forest Poor House—in 1927, there was a population of 4,444, an increase of 65 per cent.

At the Kankakee Insane Asylum in 1914 there were 3118 patients—in 1927 there were 3974, an increase of 27 per cent.

This gives you an idea of the situation in the State of Illinois. I have showed you the additional cost to the taxpayer, so far as the Joliet Institution is concerned, and if you can visualize what it amounts to in the added expense to these other institutions, you have a good idea why not only Illinois is tax-ridden and the small home-owner is forced to pay such exorbitant taxes. And just so the impression does not prevail that Illinois is the bad example, so far as the Prohibition situation is concerned, I will call your attention to the fact that insanity in Florida has increased 63 per cent, in the population at Raiford, Fla., shows an increase in felonies of 205 per cent—in Raleigh, North Carolina State Penitentiary, the increase in felony is 152 per cent. The State Hospital for the Insane at New Mexico shows an increase of 66 per cent. Misdeemeanors in Atlanta, Ga., have increased 19 per cent; The population at the United States Jail at Washington, D. C. has increased 95 per cent;

The population of the Federal Penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kansas, has increased 214 per cent; At Columbia, S. C., 78 per cent; Columbus, Ohio, 103 per cent; Richmond, Va., 131 per cent. Insanity in Richmond, Va., has increased 86 per cent.

The population of the State Penitentiary at Jefferson City, Mo., has increased 56 per cent; at Moundsville, West Virginia, has increased 123 per cent; and at Tallahassee 125 per cent.

The citizens of these States—in fact the citizens of every State, are carrying the tax burden of Prohibition.

On the other hand, the Anti-Saloon League spent $54,000,000 putting the law on the Statute Books.

Former Congressman Hobson received $154,000 of that money for making speeches.

Of course, this was not a bribe. Thousands of dollars were received by Upshaw of Georgia, and other Congressmen received assignments as speakers for the Anti-Saloon League. In other words, as members of Congress, these double-barrelled legislators were on the pay-roll of the Anti-Saloon League.

In 1919 the farmers got about $20,000,000 for hops; last year they got about $6,000,000.

The United States is exporting about 20,000,000 bushels of Barley each year. In 1912 there were 8,000,000 acres of land in this country under cultivation in Barley. The estimated crop of that year was 160,000,000 bushels.

The production of Beer in this country at that time amounted to nearly 2,000,000 gallons annually, a per capita consumption of about 20 gallons.

Don't you think that the wiping out of this market alone affected the condition of a large number of farmers in the United States?

These farmers would be materially benefited if a reasonable Com-

gress would do its duty.

Governor Al Smith in his speech at Milwaukee pointed out a method whereby 90 per cent of the bootlegging operations of this country could be done away with and a large population of farmers could have their Barley market restored to them.

He pointed out that the Volstead Act prohibits the transportation, manufacture or sale of intoxicating liquors. The Volstead Act gives Congress the power to determine what is an intoxicating liquor.

Norway determined upon 2.75 percent alcoholic content as an intoxicant, and taxed beverages beyond that alcoholic content. President Wilson took from Norway this logical determination, and in the war-time prohibition measure designated 2.75 percent alcoholic content as the regulation.

The Supreme Court has passed upon this question and has determined that it is up to Congress to designate what constitutes an intoxicant, and Congress could at its next session determine upon 2.75 percent as the alcoholic content of beer in this country, and it would begin the wiping out of the bootlegger, moonshiner and the rum runner.

Governor Smith also pointed out that it is his plan not to interfere in any State where they desire bonedry prohibition, which means that the citizens of these States would have the privilege of voting at a referendum whether or not the citizens of any State wanted beer.

Governor Smith, as you know, stands for the strict enforcement of the prohibition law while it is on the Statute Books as it is, but also stands for a plan that will bring back beer and wine. I stand on the same platform and Governor Smith cannot bring about this situation, even if elected President, unless men are sent to the United States Senate and to Congress who will back him up to the limit.

I pledge you that I shall do all in my power to aid him, and you have two other men running in the State of Illinois, whom I am sure will do likewise. They are Mayor C. D. Joplin of Murphysboro, and Charles F. Brown, who are candidates for Congressman-at-Large in the State of Illinois, and if you see fit to cast your ballot for Alfred E. Smith of New York and the Democratic ticket, I hope you will also remember your candidate for United States Senator and your two candidates for Congress-at-Large.

Fears Tiger Tread

Dr. M. Carey Thomas, president emerita of Bryn Mawr College, has cabled from Europe that she will vote for Hoover to "make doubly sure the United States will never suffer the utter humiliation of hearing the furtive tread of the Tammany tiger in the corridors of the White House and in the vaults of the treasury."

CARE OF VETERANS PROMISED BY HOOVER

WASHINGTON.—Addressing a delegation of veterans representing the various war service organizations of the District of Columbia, Herbert Hoover declared against reduction of expenditures for the care of veterans. He approved the policy of Republican administrations during the last seven years in showing ex-service men the utmost liberality.

Mr. Hoover's remarks to the delegation were as follows:

"I believe all of America recognizes our national obligation to our veterans. The country today is providing pensions and compensation to $35,292 men and women, with insurance and adjusted compensation to over four million more. The total expenditures of the government in this direction now exceed $576,943,000 annually, and represent the one important division of the government where the policy has been justifiably to increase rather than to reduce expenditures. This has also been the one important division of the government where the drive for reduction of expenditures has been applied only for economy in its administration—not against the veterans. It is the one division where large measure of increased expenditure of the government has taken place during the past seven years. This is as it should be. This government must not be extravagant but it must be just."

Salts Fine for Aching Kidneys

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys as You Clean Your Bowels

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

THE RETURN OF ANTHONY TRENT

"He knows it's true," he cried. "They knew I was armed, and they planned the whole thing. When the joke went too far they got cold feet and framed me up. People talk about Weld and Bixel influence! We'll see how much it's worth when my side of the story gets out."

He looked around the room in triumph. None could answer him. If he had to suffer because of the complete confession he had been tricked into making there were others who would go down to disgrace with him.

"I admit that I took Captain Sutton into your room," Trent said.

"And there's more than that," Grant exclaimed. "You are an accessory to the crime. Your lawyer had better admit it. He'll have to in court."

"You're a little mixed in your legal terms," Fleming Dearholt remarked, "but, substantially, you are correct."

"What have you to say to that?" Grant said venomously, looking at Trent.

"I've some interesting facts to add. Here are some of them. While you were asleep I went through your pockets and took out those letters I had carefully planted at Deal Beach. Also, I substituted blanks such as are used in moving pictures for those lead pellets you had in the gun. You shot 'em all into a favorite suit belonging to Curtis Weld. Swithin had the deuce of a time explaining matters. You remember I covered up the corpse at once. That wasn't respect for the dead. I did it in case you might observe Sutton's breathing. A man properly slain oughtn't to inflate and deflate his lungs as he was doing."

"You are lying," Grant whispered; his face was white.

Trent rose, went to the door and reappeared with a strongly built man of middle age who had a keen, incisive way with him. It was the doctor who had examined the body in the mountain camp.

"This, Grant, is Mr. Brunton Warne, one of the best-known pursers on the transatlantic route. He has longed, for years, to see the last episode of a serial. I am happy to be able to accommodate him."

"You didn't appreciate my anecdotes on the way to Ellabettown, did you?" the purser said. "I had my anxious moments, too. I was afraid at first I had slipped a little too much nepenthe in that coffee, but you would have it."

Payson Grant looked at them venomously. He was a trapped beast and he knew it. But he realized that none here had the right to hold him. There was yet time to make his escape.

"I want my clothes," he snapped. "I've my rights, too. You can't detain me."

"I could," Trent said, "but I won't. I'll have you followed instead."

"Here's another angle," said Grant, pausing at the door. "You've harbored a fugitive from justice knowing him to be an escaped convict; that's a punishable offense."

"I admit," Trent said, smiling, "but that risk was considered long ago, and accepted. The governor will probably tell me I did wrong and I shall bow my head in shame. But when he reads your confession and learns how you framed up your benefactor he won't be very severe. You have my address. If your lawyer wants mine, Dearholt's office is in the Equitable building."

Late that night the governor was consulting with the state attorney general on the peculiar status of Frank Warren Sutton, address unknown, who seemed to be entitled to executive clemency. His excellency frowned when the telephone tinkled. He knew that only important business would cause his secretary to interrupt at this hour. The governor smiled when he learned it was Curtis Weld and a friend who desired to see him.

Curtis Weld was a haughty and imperious magnate, but he knew when to unbend. Tonight was such an occasion.

"Governor," he said cordially, and bowed to the attorney general also, "I have come to the highest authorities. Gentlemen, what redress have I against a man who allowed himself to be murdered in a favorite tweed suit of mine? Just take a look at the damage."

The governor and his law officer saw that the breast pocket of the suit the unknown wore was a singed and blackened area.

"This is my friend, Capt. Frank Warren Sutton," said Curtis Weld, the Power.

"I've come to give myself up, your excellency," said Sutton.

"There's one thing to consider," said the attorney general later. "It seems you committed a grievous assault on one Hiram Ridgway, robbed him of his clothes and seven dollars and six cents. I know this man Ridgway, and he's a crank, but he had the law on his side, captain. It's going to be awkward."

Captain Sutton smiled.

"Not as bad as you think, sir," he said. "I've seen old Ridgway, and he has agreed not to press the charge."

"Are you a miracle-worker?" the attorney general demanded. "He's implacable!"

"The joke is on me," Sutton answered a little ruefully. "I've sworn to follow his dietary chart for six calendar months."

CHAPTER XIV

"The New Life Comes in the Old One's Stead."

Payson Grant was brought to justice with commendable speed. What threatened to become the most sensational trial of the year was quickly finished with. Perhaps the great influence of some of those remotely concerned with it was not without effect.

The public which had heard vague rumors about the amazing way in which the confession of Grant had been brought about, was cheated of its thrills. Grant's counsel thought it better not to bring Deal Beach or the Weld camp into the affair. With his attorney, Grant came to see that he would make a better impression if it were thought the honest desire to atone actuated him.

Those employees he had paid to perjure themselves held nothing back. The man Grant had hired to put a revolver in Captain Sutton's pocket confessed fully. Sutton's excellent war record, the commendations of his superior officers and the testimony of the old friends who now flocked, a trifle shamefacedly to his support, moved the governor to pardon him before the trial began.

Again Payson Grant occupied a cell overlooking the Hudson, but this time with the certainty that the river view would be his for many years. Natica divorced him. The case was notable for the severe remarks made to her by the judge. Rarely had a woman been so held up to public scorn as that Natica Grant who had schemed to enter high society. When the trial was over she knew that social victories were impossible.

It was not until after Grant had been sentenced that Anthony Trent went to see Mademoiselle Dupin, who still remained with Mrs. Kinney. She asked him innumerable questions about his part in forcing the confession.

"I see very plainly how you did the thing up to the moment you drugged him," she said, "but it seems incredible you could have persuaded him that he had been a convict so long. He must have had some suspicion that something was wrong surely?"

"That was the hardest part," Trent answered, "but attention to details brought us success."

"You mean the fake cell and the warders in uniform?"

"More than that. Grant was vain of his hands and wore his finger nails rather long. I cut his nails short and scrubbed his hands in a strongly alkaline fluid which roughened them and made the skin seem withered. Then Brunton Warne rubbed them in garden dirt until they looked as though he had done manual labor for months. Also we cut his hair short. I figured that he would look at his hands instinctively. If they had been as he last remembered them he might

Sickle Still in Use at Galician Harvest

A Galician peasant girl frames her bronzed face with a russet-colored handkerchief. She wears a blouse of blue percale with sleeves of checked gingham, and a gray woolen skirt. The white and blue striped apron is crumpled by the sheaf of yellow wheat clasped in her smooth brown arms.

In Galicia many of the men emigrate to find employment, and the women carry on the work of the four seasons. The fields are small; the farming methods are the methods of the Homeric age. The red earth is turned in shallow furrows with wooden plows drawn by biscuit-colored oxen.

The seed is scattered by hand, and the soil is cultivated with wooden harrows. In June the grain is ripe, and the peasant girl goes into the field with her sickle.

have smelt a rat. I watched him wake to consciousness through a hole drilled in his cell wall. It was his hands that horrified him and made him believe. Then the element of good luck was there. We made a record trip from the camp with no tire trouble or motor police to hold us back."

"But the drug," she said, "as Mr. Warne was not a physician were you not frightened?"

"We had oxygen in reserve," he returned. "Of course there was danger but I had one of my hunches that everything would turn out all right."

"You are always successful," she said slowly. "I don't think any other living man could have done what you did for your friend. It amazes me that you do not look triumphant. You have accomplished the impossible and yet seem bored and tired."

She looked at him curiously. There was a certain sense of depression about him which she could not understand. She was satisfied that it was not a pose but the genuine emotion.

"I'm neither tired nor bored," he replied. "I'm nervous. What I did for Sutton was play, but now I want to do something for myself."

"Why should you fail at that?" she demanded.

"Perhaps because I am so anxious to succeed."

"Then you will only have to put out special effort," she smiled. "You see, Mr. Trent, I have very great confidence in you."

"I wish I dare believe that," he sighed.

"You know it is true," she said, almost indignantly. There was something vaguely frightening in this abandonment by Anthony Trent of his former supreme self-confidence.

"It has something to do with you," he confessed.

"But how can that be?" she demanded.

"I'm thinking about your future. You have no money and you cannot take any position, even a lowly one, without the danger of being recognized. You can wear clothes that are out of style and the severest sort of coiffure, but that won't disguise your unforgettable eyes. I recognized you. So did Redlich. Why not others? If some one remembers you what will happen? You will go to prison. I cannot bear to think of a woman of your upbringing herded with the people who would force themselves on you. You would come out something different from what you were when you went in and nothing could give you back your old self. You would be a broken middle-aged woman for whom nothing was left but to live by crime."

She saw that he was agitated by the image that presented itself so vividly to him. And she knew it was true. Anthony Trent had reminded her of this constant menace of arrest and imprisonment. The police were still hunting for her. For the time she was safe, but she could not remain here much longer.

"Money, if carefully applied," he said eagerly, "will do most things. You and I have a fortune between us. If we choose, we can get away easily enough. You have heard Sutton say I must have spent a fortune over him. I told him I could easily afford it. Suppose I tell you I have spent every cent I had?"

"I can believe it," she said seriously. His expenditures had been on a lavish scale. There was distress in her face. "You have brought yourself to ruin for a friend!"

"No, not to absolute ruin. I said, if you will remember, that we had a fortune between us. Look at this Mademoiselle Dupin. Have you forgotten this?"

Anthony Trent drew from a little chamois-leather bag that magnificent stone which collectors the world over knew as the "Nizam's Diamond." It was the famous jewel which Trent had taken from Mademoiselle Dupin when she had been known as the wealthy Long Island society woman, Madame de Beaulieu. Trent knew the stone but he did not know from whom she had taken it. The only data he could gather about it was that a messenger to whom it had been entrusted for deposit in the strong room of a bank was found murdered in the Thames, off Rotherhithe, ten years before. At that time the conservative estimate of fifty thousand pounds was placed upon it.

Mademoiselle Dupin gazed upon the glistering thing in silence.

DR. CALDWELL'S
THREE RULES

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not habit forming.

The Doctor never did approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, head aches, and to break up fevers and colds. Get a bottle today, at any drugstore and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open. For a free trial bottle, just write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. Plans are under way whereby representatives of the various divisions of the Illinois department of agriculture, engaged in promotional service for the advancement of the farming industry in its several branches, will visit schools throughout the state as speakers for the vocational agricultural classes and for adult night schools that the Smith-Hughes teachers conduct. For this service, the department will have available at intervals throughout the season, recognized authorities on dairying, poultry raising, fruit marketing, egg marketing, and the sundry branches of live stock and poultry disease eradication information and the approved methods of plant disease and insect pest control will also be available for this educational service.

Although the county fairs of Illinois in general are not unusually successful financially this season, their conduct shows improvement over former years, according to the director of agriculture, Stillman J. Stanard, who has had a representative at every agricultural exposition that participates in state appropriations. With very few exceptions, Stanard finds, the fair officials and the state inspectors working together, have been able to prevent the operation of objectionable concessions. In the instances of deviations from the rules of propriety, prompt action in evicting the operators of objectionable features has resulted.

Secretary of State Louis L. Emmerson has been elected an active thirty-third degree Mason from Illinois in the supreme council of the United States. The selection was made recently at a meeting of the supreme council of Masons in session at Atlantic City. A vacancy existed in the Illinois representation and Mr. Emmerson was chosen. The appointment gives to Mr. Emmerson every honor that can be accorded by Masonry.

The annual meeting of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce will be held on October 18 and 19 at the Congress hotel, Chicago. Among the speakers will be Lawrence A. Downs, president of the Illinois Central railroad; B. C. Forbes of New York, publisher of Forbes Magazine; Edward A. Filene, famous author and noted Boston merchant, and Col. William P. McCracken, Jr., assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, Washington, D. C.

Expressed desire on the part of a motorist is not sufficient reason for the revocation of his automobile license, Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom has ruled. The case arose in LaSalle county, where a motorist apprehended for violation of the motor vehicle act, asked to have his license revoked. "If the person could be charged with a second offense and plead guilty, the revocation could be made," the attorney general suggested.

Assets of a deceased inmate of the Soldiers' and Sailors' home at Quincy should be handled by an appointed administrator until heirs are found, or until the money reverts to the department of public welfare, the attorney general has ruled. If unclaimed after two years, Mr. Carlstrom informed Roy Ide, director of the department of public welfare, the funds may be expended by the department.

While the prevalence of measles is very low at just this time averaging only 25 cases per week in the state, the danger to those who get it is far greater than during the usual measles season, according to Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, state health director. Why the disease is more fatal during the autumn months, when cases are fewest, is a question that puzzles the medical profession and health authorities but the fact remains that measles is five times more apt to terminate fatally in September and October than in March and April. "An analysis of mortality and sickness reports of measles shows that autumn is the worst time of the year to have that disease," Doctor Rawlings said. "Fortunately most people who take it get measles in the spring when the mortality rate is about one out of every 200 cases reported."

The department of public works and buildings, division of highways, has sold a block of $9,000,000 of state highway bonds for the sum of $8,752,000. This represents a rate of $97.255, or an interest yield on the bonds amounting to 4.185 per cent. The bonds were 4 per cent serial bonds. The bonds will be dated September 1, 1928, and will mature $500,000 annually, May 1, 1952 to 1954 inclusive, and $1,000,000 annually May 1, 1955 to 1958 inclusive.

The first inspection of Illinois fire protection system in southern Illinois is now being made by Chief Forester R. B. Miller and a representative of the United States forest service, with which the state is co-operating under the Clarke-McNary bill. Mr. Miller is now in southern Illinois, where he is working with Murray Bruner, district forest inspector of the United States forest service. The inspection trip will cover most of the forested area south of Centralia. As many other points as possible will be visited to determine both the thoroughness of the protection and the possibility of enlarging its scope. The final plan is to protect from fire at least 350,000 acres of timber land in Illinois, placing Illinois on about the same basis as Indiana.

After extensive correspondence with the poultry promotional agencies throughout the United States, the Mexican government has determined that the service rendered for advancement of the poultry industry by the Illinois department of agriculture is the most practical and the most successful. The neighbor republic has therefore planned to pattern after Illinois.

An envoy representing President Calles has been in touch with the poultry husbandry division representatives of the state department of agriculture and has secured the plans and specifications for the buildings used as poultry experimental plants. "Suggestions to Poultry Raisers," an instructive bulletin issued by the department, is to be translated into Mexican by the government of that country as a part of plans for the advancement of the poultry industry beyond the Rio Grande. President Calles is establishing a poultry ranch of his own, with foundation stock imported from the flocks in Illinois that have attained state accreditation.

The Calhoun county apple movement, now under way, will total about 400,000 barrels, according to the estimate issued in the fruit bulletin issued jointly by the division of standardization and markets, Illinois department of agriculture, and the division of state and federal crop estimates.

The report of the probable commercial movement of Illinois apples is placed at 1,135,000 barrels, or little below the five-year average.

More of the crop will move in smaller packages, bushel tub baskets particularly, than formerly. Three modern packing plants are in operation this year, and the product marketed through them, to a great extent, will move by rail with shipping point inspection and state certificates of grade and quality.

Speakers a few days ago at the celebration of the sixty-sixth anniversary of the issuing of the Emancipation Proclamation in the state arsenal at Springfield stressed the benefits and importance of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and traced the development of the colored race. Among the speakers were William E. King, Chicago, former state representative from Third district and candidate for the office; Oscar DePriest, Chicago, and Mrs. Pearl Ruby Perdean, St. Louis. Mayor J. Emil Smith of Springfield gave the address of welcome.

Determined to practice in his own department the principles of prevention and health promotion which he recommends to the people of the state, Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, state health director, has asked the professional, technical and clerical employees of the state department of public health to have a physical examination.

One thousand miles of hard roads have been laid by the state division of highways thus far this year. The construction program for the present is 75 miles ahead of the program at the same time in 1924, when Illinois set a world's record in hard road building. Approximately 1,240 miles of pavement were laid in 1924. With about two months to go in this year's construction season, highway officials hope to bring the 1928 total up to 1,300 miles. Illinois now has about 7,700 miles of hard roads, more than any other state in the union.

Lesson for October 7

PAUL IN EPHEBUS

LESSON TEXT—Acts 19:8-20.
GOLDEN TEXT—We are his workmanship created in Christ Jesus unto good works which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul's Bravery Against a Crowd.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul's Bravery Against a Crowd.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Outgrowing Superstition.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Growing Together in Christ.

I. Paul Preaching in Ephesus (vv. 8-10).

1. In the synagogue (v. 8).
Paul's custom was to go to the Jews first with the gospel, though they were his inveterate enemies. His preaching here was characterized by:

(1) Boldness. He knew that God had sent him and therefore that he was backed by divine authority. This should characterize every Christian worker.

(2) Argument. The gospel message is in accord with the highest reason.

(3) Persuasion. It is not enough that the minister come boldly with a reasonable message. It must be accompanied with persuasion. "Knowing the terror of the Lord, we persuade men."

(4) The message should have definite content.

It was concerning the kingdom of God. Paul's supreme theme was salvation through Christ.

2. In the schoolhouse of Tyrannus (vv. 9, 10).

Paul's earnest scriptural and persuasive preaching only hardened the hearts of the Jews, even causing them to speak evil openly of this way of salvation by faith in Christ. It was for this reason that Paul separated the disciples from them and retired to the schoolhouse of Tyrannus, where he continued his ministry for two years with glorious results.

II. God Working Miracles by Paul (vv. 11-16).

Ephesus was noted for its wonder workers, therefore if Paul's ministry was to be successful God must in an extraordinary way put His seal upon the work. So wonderful was the divine power manifested that even handkerchiefs or aprons brought from Paul's body healed the sick and cast out evil spirits. Everywhere the supremacy of the Lord Jesus Christ was recognized. Seeing the marvelous power operating through Paul, certain strolling Jews who went about the country practicing the magical arts at the expense of their poor unfortunate fellows, undertook to use the name "Jesus" in their incantations. Knowing that the connection with Christ was not real on the part of these Jews, the use of His name by them only enraged the evil spirit who struck them and overcame them. The name of Jesus is only powerful on the believers' lips.

III. A Glorious Revival at Ephesus (vv. 17-41).

1. Fear fell upon all (v. 17). News of the casting out of these evil spirits created impressions favorable to Christianity.

2. It brought to the front those who professed faith in Christ, while not living right lives (v. 18). They believed but had not broken from sin. Great blessing would come to the church if some awakening could come to those whose lives are not in keeping with their profession and cause them to openly confess and make a new start.

3. Gave up the practice of Black arts (v. 19).

This means forms of jugglery by use of charms and magical words. All such are in opposition to the will of God, therefore no one can have fellowship with God and practice them. They proved the genuineness of their actions by publicly burning their books.

4. The uproar of the silversmiths at Ephesus (vv. 23-41).

1. The occasion (vv. 23, 24).

This was the power of the gospel in destroying the infamous business of Demetrius and his fellows.

2) The method (vv. 25-29).

Demetrius, a leading business man, called a meeting and stated that because of much people turning from idolatry business conditions were threatened and that the market for their wares was weakening. He stated, "This our craft is in danger." The world is willing to tolerate any kind of religion or moral awakening so long as it does not interfere with its business or manner of life. He further said, "The temple of the great goddess Diana will be destroyed." He became quite religious when he saw that business was being interfered with.

TINLEY PARK

The Tinley Garden Club awarded the prizes in their most improved home surroundings and garden contest last week. The civic committee of which Mrs. Lulu Rogers is chairman with Mrs. Henry Brueggemann and Mrs. John Klepper, assisting, was appointed to act as judges.

The committee visited each of the improved yards in Tinley Park and reported a most interesting time.

Mr. E. Freberg received the $5 cash prize which he will spend toward further beautification of his grounds. Fred Meyer received the blue ribbon prize, Mr. Hays the yellow, Mr. Pete Wannemacher the red and Mrs. Henry Glogwartz the white.

It was a real pleasure for the Garden Club to award these prizes and according to the judges, the prize winners were equally as pleased.

That the Tinley Park folks are real flower lovers and greatly interested in gardening is very evident according to the high praise of the judges on the grounds visited.

Peter Wannemacher has returned from a trip to Minot and Dickerson, North Dakota. He reports a bountiful harvest. Wheat ran from 15 to 40 bushels to the acre; barley went around 42 bushels per acre. Prairie chickens are plentiful too.

A baker from Chicago has rented the Holstein building formerly occupied by the A. & P. store. He has moved part of his fixtures in and expects to open soon.

The annual bazaar and supper of the Zion Lutheran church was held at the Saenger hall Thursday afternoon and evening. A great crowd attended and the affair was a big success in every way.

Mrs. C. W. Miller of Chicago called on Tinley friends Wednesday. J. C. Andres, Mayor Funk and a few other baseball fans attended the city series game in Chicago on Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Olson has moved into the Wilke dwelling. She is still doing home baking on orders.

Sportsmen from Tinley, Homewood, Englewood, Blue Island and other nearby towns have formed a hunting club and are buying 1970 acres of land along the river near Havana, Illinois for a hunting preserve. Thus far $10,000 have been paid down on the land. Membership in this club sell for $950. By next year the memberships will probably reach $1150. There are 600 acres of corn on the property and also over 900 acres of swamp with some farm land. This week Saturday 32 members are going by special chartered truck to the new hunting grounds. Among those going from Tinley Park are Mayor Wm. Funk, Charles Nielsen, Wm. Kochler and others.

The street signs which the Lions Club ordered sometime ago have arrived and will be erected soon.

Don't forget the big Lions Club Halloween-Harvest dance festival at the Saenger hall October 27. Also remember cash prizes will be awarded on corn and pumpkins.

The Tinley Park firemen will hold a thanksgiving dance at the Saenger hall November 29.

The Tinley Park Volunteer Fire Department are going to build an addition to the pumping station to form a new fire engine house to house the chemical truck. It has been found that it is cheaper to heat the pumping station and fire station than to heat the latter separately. V. H. Scheer and Henry Bettenhausen have been awarded the job to build the addition.

There was no football game last Sunday as the New Lenox team did not show up. This coming Sunday, Tinley Park plays the Oak Lawn team at Tinley Park.

Officer George Smith is enforcing to the letter the village ruling that no posters of any kind be tacked on any post in the village limits.

P. T. A. NEWS

October brings fond recollections of vacations gone but not forgotten and we hope the members who have been "vacationing" beyond the season will make a special effort to attend our meetings. The October meeting was held on the 5th.

The delicious creamy fudge served by the refreshment chairman, Mrs. Francis Rowden, at our September 7th meeting was a very pleasant surprise.

We are glad to welcome Mesdames Lena Meyer, Louise Hermsmeider, Mary Parenti, Minnie Rice, Jane Keuch, Pauline Snyder and Messrs. John Swisher and George Smith as new members.

Dues for 1928 are now due and if you have not already paid same, please get in touch with the treasurer, Mrs. Alice Anderson and get your receipt so that a full report may be forwarded to the National Headquarters when our seal for this term will be received.

To which room will the banner go for October? Bring a prospective member to the next meeting. Let's make it a real homecoming and an incentive to the officers. It is the attendance and encouragement of the members that goes a long way towards making a successful P. T. A.

One step won't take you very far; You have got to keep on walking. One word won't tell folks who you are.

You've got to keep on talking. One inch won't make you very tall. You've got to keep on growing.

One trip to the P. T. A. won't do it all; You've got to KEEP ON GOING.

—Mrs. Hilding Anderson
Mr. and Mrs. Wallace B. Combs have been staying at the hotel Sherman in Chicago while Mr. Combs attended the Belt railroad convention which was being held there. They were guests at a dinner party at the Illinois Athletic Club and a number of other functions.

MOKENA

Complimentary to Mrs. Willard Marti formerly Miss Julia Hirsch, who was bride of last month, Mrs. Byron Nelson entertained twenty-five guests in her honor Thursday evening. Bunco was played at five tables, prizes being won by Mrs. Howard Marti, Mrs. Frank Hirsch, Jr., and Miss Mildred Cappel which were presented to the bride. Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Lester Schiek and Mrs. Roy Barnes.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank our friends, relatives, and neighbors for their acts of kindness and sympathy shown us during our late bereavement in the illness and death of our beloved husband and father, E. J. Maue; also for beautiful floral offerings, Rev. W. J. Cramer for his comforting words, the singers and those who so kindly donated the use of their cars.

MRS. E. J. MAUE AND CHILDREN

A Republican Woman's Tea was held under the supervision of Mrs. Albert Braun local precinct committee woman at the Caroline Braun home Wednesday afternoon.

A very fine program was given which was exceptionally well attended and the women voters were given interesting sidelights on the political situation now confronting the nation. The following speakers made addresses: Mrs. George Arbeiter, Joliet, Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neil, Downers Grove, Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell of Iowa and Frank Hanson of Bloomington.

Tobacco leaves when submitted to chemical analysis yield nicotine, which is its most characteristic constituent; albumin, a gluten-like substance; gum, resin, malic and citric acids, and a large amount of inorganic constituents, 100 parts of the dry leaf yielding from about 19 to 27 per cent of ash, in which potash, lime and silica predominate.

With best wishes, I am,

Very truly yours,

LOUIS L. EMMERSON

Here is the statement mentioned: "The rapid increase in the burden of taxation and the facility for inventing new methods of extracting revenue from the people must be curbed."

"My attitude on highway construction is well known. I was a pioneer in this movement and was one of those who cooperated in the formulation of the plan of financing which has made possible the construction of our present highway system. As Secretary of State I have collected and turned into the good roads fund considerably more than $90,000,000—one half more than the original $60,000,000 bond issue."

Not only shall I push vigorously the completion of the bond issue system, if I am elected Governor, but also recommend legislation to provide for the paving of secondary or neighborhood and connecting roads, thus extending the benefits of good highways to hundreds of communities not now enjoying them. I shall give special attention to the widening of main arteries leading to large centers of population so as to relieve traffic congestion."

Clean Electric Bulbs

The dry dust and dirt that accumulates on electric lamp bulbs and inside electric lighting fixtures often causes a decrease of illuminating value of 30 per cent within three months and where soot and oily dust are found the results are even worse. Therefore, all electric lamp bulbs and fixtures should be cleaned thoroughly and regularly.
